NATASHA GORRIE

Natasha Gorrie has grown up in the hip hop dance scene since a young age. Her first brush of hip hop dance was when her mother taught her how to do the “running man” in the living room of their home. Natasha’s mother was a self-taught freestyle dancer, with a huge passion for new jack swing dancing. Ever since then, Natasha has had a love for the fundamentals of hip hop and funk styles.

Some of Natasha’s film and television credits include, She’s the Man, Another Cinderella Story, Hellcats, a music video for DJ Tiesto, and commercials for Campbell’s Soup and Nestle Water.

Natasha has toured throughout Asia, taught dance in India and trained and lived in Los Angeles. She has choreographed for Monsters of Hip Hop and loves to join a freestyle circle. Natasha enjoys training in many forms of dance and will never stop increasing her knowledge. Currently, she is focused on training for battles in town and internationally.

Natasha is co-founder of the power house, all female crew “Diamonds In The Rough” based out of Vancouver. As a group, they have travelled throughout the USA performing and training. Diamonds In The Rough have big dreams and goals. They enjoy working together on ways to make those dreams become reality.
